

As a flight attendant for a major carrier the use of cell phones inflight would cause chaos. Passengers already don't listen nor follow the rules in regards to flying. The picture of trying to prepare a cabin for an emergency landing and people too busy talking on their cell phones instead of listening to our safety instructions does not look pretty. When people travel they usually look at it as a place to relax from a stressfull day. Have 3 people in one row talking and gabbing for hours does nothing for that atmosphere. The use of cell phones will only cause for tension in the air. You cram so many people in a tube of metal and the use of cell phones is only adding fuel to the fire so to speak. I kindly ask you consider all the situations/scenarios.
